HISTORY CHANNEL FILMS LOCAL CONTRACTOR FOR NEW SHOW

(SCOTCH PLAINS, NJ) December 21, 2004 - - - The History Channel filmed Jay Griffith of Griffith Painting and Restoration Inc. today for a TV show segment called "Back to the Blue Print" which will air in January 2005. The show broadcasts on Saturday afternoons on the History Channel station. "Filming for a television segment was a new and exciting experience for me and my company." said Jay Griffith, President, Griffith Painting and Restoration, Inc. The History Channel was looking to do a documentary about a Victorian home in need of a major exterior painting renovation. The project also required reproducing the original colors of the homes from the 1800 era.

Griffith Painting is located at 1590 East Second Street Scotch Plains, NJ. They are a full service painting and remodeling firm. "Griffith's commitment to quality and craftsmanship stems from our beginnings in the painting industry and having learned to pay attention to details that others overlook, which is reason why The History Channel sought our expertise." said Jay Griffith. Along with interior and exterior painting, Griffith Painting also remodels kitchens, baths and basements.

Jay Griffith is a member of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America and is on the Board of Directors for special projects for the Northern New Jersey chapter. Along with contractual residential and commercial restoration services, he recently volunteered his time and energy, along with his company, and a few good friends, to paint the exterior of the Plainfield Animal Shelter in Plainfield, NJ and Raphael's Life House in Elizabeth, NJ, a home for young mothers.
